Fuel Parts UK Expands it's Starter Range

Company launches brand-new printed rotating electrics document

Fuel Parts UK, a leading manufacturer and supplier of fuel and emissions components, has just launched its new 2009 rotating electrics catalogue. The Bromsgrove-based company launched their all-makes range of starter motors and alternators in January 2008 and has expanded the range to over 270 part numbers. The range comes with the added benefit of no surcharges and no exchange, plus a 12 month no quibble warranty.

The new 115-page document – which features starter motors and alternators presents a total of over 3500 references and features bespoke product sections that will be invaluable to stockists and technicians alike as they explain what certain products do, their failure symptoms and what service maintenance is required when this happens.

Managing director Andy West said: “We are continually investing much time and effort into developing our existing ranges, as well as adding new ones. We are confident that by adding our usual high level service, off the shelf availability, technical support and prices equivalent to those offered for remanufactured parts but with no surcharges, will give our customers a really competitive advantage in this established market.”
